Dead Sea Scrolls in Perspective John C. Trever

This book represents a general introduction to the whole outline of the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls, covering more than fifty years of exploration and analysis of the most ancient biblical manuscripts that have come to light.

Included are some previously unpublished color and black & white photographs taken by the author in February, 1948. At that time Dr. Trever was a fellow of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem and was the acting director when first consulted about the original scrolls taken from Cave I. Dr. Trever made the only complete photographic record of the first three scrolls in their original condition. Presented here are photographs of the fourth scroll, the Genesis Apocrypha, and additional fragments. These photographs need to be published to preserve their record in view of the serious deterioration of many of the original manuscripts since their discovery.

The archaeological process between 1949 and 1958 of uncovering the various levels of occupation of the Khirbet Qumran site, the adjacent cemeteries and the area devoted to farming is summarized in one chapter. Dr. Trever devotes the final chapter to his proposed theory for the origin of the Dead Sea Scrolls and the probable importance of the Book of Daniel in the life of the Qumran community.

Includes 16 pages of B&W photoos and 32 pages of color photos
