Clothing, Mindset & Value: Achieving freedom to dress with confidence and joy Julie Browne

This book promotes an underutilized way to leverage the power of personal image to create competitive edge™. It connects professional women with couture-level home-sewers who can make them signature wardrobes. It asks readers to take an honest look at what they're currently settling for – most likely a mediocre wardrobe – and question how that is or is not supporting their success. It proposes that they value their wardrobe differently, and dare to create one they're in love with. To this end, it attempts to convince women to seek out the highest skilled home-sewers, to fill their wardrobes with intimate treasures of comfort, beauty and passion. The book also serves as a marketing tool for home-sewers who want to make a living with their all-but-forgotten trade. It supports the case for elevating home-sewing to the exciting luxury service that it is. It educates prospective clients on • How to find couture-level home-sewers • The process involved in creating custom pieces • How to determine value • The endless benefits of wearing perfectly fitting clothes in colors and styles which best enhance one's image. Women who'd most benefit from this book are • Women in the spotlight, especially non-fashionista C-Suite women • Home-sewers • All women who deeply desire to wear exactly what they want.
